

The Vanishing Point by Christopher Bailey

Cube Space

Friday 8th of March 2024, 5pm

In association with Creative Brain Week, Disrupt Disability Arts Festival presents The Vanishing Point, an experimental conversation with Christopher Bailey, Head of Arts and Health at the World Health Organisation, as well as an actor and playwright.

Creative Brain Week, 4th to 9th March 2024 is a pioneering event that illustrates innovation at the intersection of arts and brain science, including creative approaches to health.

In this 45 minute performance, Bailey talks about his sight loss journey, and what he has gained along the way.

Bailey stands alone in the pink performance space of the Cube with just a microphone on a stand, and his white cane, which he leans on gently. A middle-aged man with grey hair, Bailey wears a pale-coloured business suit, and sometimes wears tinted glasses. He addresses the audience directly throughout.

After the performance, there will be a public conversation between Christopher Bailey, and AlanJames Burns from the Disrupt Festival team, for about 15 minutes.

Please note that the Cube Space is designated as a masked space.